RIVER FALLING SINCE MONDAY

The river is falling. That news is the cause for a brighter look on the faces of those who have been watching the antics of the Father of Waters for the past few weeks with a feeling of anxiety and dread.

Coming to a stand here Sunday, a drop of about two or three inches has been recorded each day since Monday, when the sheet process of receding began. With favorable weather conditions, the drop should assume larger proportions in the next day or two.

Despite the prediction from the meteorologist at Cairo that the crest would be reached at that point last Thursday, the river continued on its rise until late Saturday, rising here until Sunday, with a result that every record for high water at this point was broken. The previous record mark was that of the flood of 1912, and this mark was topped by several inches, and resulted in the flooding of buildings which had been built above the high water mark of that year.

Every store on Clinton street was reached by the water with the exception of Brooks' Jewelry Store. The Live Store, the Hickman Bank & Trust Company, and Dobson's. In Dobson's the highest water came in the front door to a distance of about four feet but did not seriously inconvenience business there. In some of the other business houses the seepage flooded the cellars.

The fall in the river which has occurred since Monday has taken the water out of a few of those stores which were flooded and by Saturday many of the others will be above the water.

The levees have held admirably throughout the entire high water. In some places serious weaknesses appeared, but these were immediately remedied and strengthened to prevent any break occurring. A heavy guard watched the entire levee day and night.

A prediction from the weather man that a strong wind from the northwest was to be expected Tuesday evening between five and six o'clock caused a great deal of apprehension, as a wind from that direction might be expected to play havoc with a great part of the levees in this district. The wind came according to the forecast and was of considerable intensity for a short time, and put the levees to some extent. In spite of the prediction that it would be about twenty-four hours duration, however, it lasted for only about two hours without intensity sufficient to cause any fear for the levees.

When the river reached a stand and began to fall, many of those who had moved with their families and live stock from behind the levees returned to their homes, feeling that practically all danger from the levee was over.

A fact which is causing serious concern is the different height the water reaches here now from what it formerly did as compared with the measurement on the Cairo gauge. In 1912 the gauge at Cairo reached 54.7, while this year the gauge read 53.7 at the highest point. In spite of the fact that the gauge this year at Cairo was a foot under that of 1912, the water here reached a point several inches above the highest water mark recorded here in the 1912 flood. This difference is caused by the addition to the levee systems in this section backing the water up to a greater height in the unprotected districts.

Since the high water began to assume serious proportions hundreds of sight-seers have visited Hickman to see the flood. The fact that a down-pour of rain began Saturday night at eleven o'clock and lasted practically all day Sunday, probably prevented a crowd numbering a thousand or more from visiting the city on that day. In spite of the inauspicious weather a large number came on the afternoon train Sunday and returned to their home on the night train.

In spite of the adverse conditions under which they were laboring, practically every business house in the city remained open for business throughout the entire flood. Now that the waters are receding, the merchants are removing the scaffolding built for use during the high water as fast as the water permits, and will in a few days be prepared to conduct their business in a normal way. It is thought that practically every business house in town will be free from water sufficiently to do business without serious inconvenience by Saturday.

Saturday, April 1st is the tenth anniversary of the breaking of the levee, which catastrophe occurred April 1st, 1912. Let us be thankful that this same disaster has not taken place during the present high water and hope that never again will it occur.

Fred Case, of Charleston, W. Va., and Mrs. Perry Selby and Mrs. Blanche Kennedy, of St. Louis, are here visiting their parents, F. E. Case and wife. This is the first time in nineteen years all three have been at home with their parents together.

In reporting the capacity of the Mound pump in carrying out drainage water from West Hickman last week, an error was made in stating this had a capacity of 30,000 gallons a minute, but instead it has a capacity of 3,000 gallons a minute.

Mrs. W. B. Amborg entertained the Bridge Club on last Friday afternoon at two tables. A salad course and coffee were served.

The water is off of most of the side walks on the south side of Clinton St. now, and will probably be out of the street by Saturday or Sunday.

371 REGISTERED IN SCHOOL BOND REGISTRATION

A total of 371 voters registered Saturday, a special registration day appointed for the bond election Saturday, April 1st. Of these 202 registered in the First ward and 169 in the Second ward. The First ward's registration was divided as follows: Women, 95; men, 107. In the Second ward: Women, 97; men, 72. Total: Women, 192; men, 179.

The registration place for the First ward was at B. S. Elliott's shop and at the court house for the Second ward. Officers for the First ward were: Jno. Weatherly and W. T. Boudurant, judges; Chas. A. Johnson, clerk; M. M. Tolloss, sheriff. The Second ward officers were: W. J. Shaw and M. M. Mills, judges; A. A. Farls, clerk; T. H. Williams, sheriff.

TAKING MOVING PICTURES OF THE HIGH WATER

Norman W. Alley, camera man of the International News Reel, of Chicago, and representing that film company in the middle west was in Hickman Monday taking motion pictures of the high water. He took about 400 feet of film here getting various scenes to be incorporated in one of the weekly news pictorials. He arrived from Chicago Monday morning and returned Monday night.

The pictures will be shown in some of the larger eastern cities today (Thursday) and will arrive at Hickman, Memphis and other southern cities in the next few weeks.

W. H. Huff writes he is getting on fine and has gained nine pounds since going to Colorado.

TWO MEETINGS AT COURT HOUSE FRIDAY NIGHT

There will be a general meeting of the Health & Welfare League for the purpose of electing officers for the coming year. The present terms of office expire on April 1st.

There will also be a meeting in the court room at 7:30 to discuss the school bond issue. If you favor the bond, come. If you are against the bond, come. If you do not fully understand the bond issue, do not fail to be present.

Mrs. Geo. Creddie, Geo. Creddie and wife and Mr. and Mrs. Dick Wallace, of Fulton, motored over Tuesday to see the high water.

Mrs. R. L. Sanders, of Nashville was the guest of Mrs. J. O. West Sunday, returning home Monday morning.

GEO. MORROW DIED TUESDAY NIGHT

George Morrow, 74 years old, died on Tuesday night at the home of his niece, Mrs. A. S. Barkett, after several days' illness. Mr. Morrow, with his brother, had operated a small store in the bottoms, a few miles below here, for a number of years. He was taken to Paducah for treatment but was brought back here last Sunday night to the home of A. S. Barkett, his case being hopeless and he had been unconscious for several days. He was unmarried. Interment was had on Wednesday afternoon at the City Cemetery.

Valley Hadleston, wife and daughter, Mildred, and Mrs. Hardean Howard, and Miss Lillian Milner, of Fulton, were here Tuesday afternoon, the guests of friends.

VOTE ON SCHOOL BONDS SATURDAY

$20,000 For Better School Facilities in Hickman School District.

Saturday the citizens of the Hickman School District are to decide by a special election called for that purpose whether or not school bonds are to be issued in the sum of $20,000 for the purpose of bettering the school facilities in the district.

The conditions which make the issuing of these bonds necessary have been pointed out and carefully explained through the columns of The Courier for the past three weeks. Other points are discussed in this week's issue, and a careful study of all these articles will bring to your attention the various points arguing for the passage of this bond measure.

When we realize that whether or not we vote these bonds the school tax will be raised from $1.25 to $1.50, we believe no voter who can have any interest in the schools and the children of the city can fail to see that to vote the bonds will be immeasurably better than to fail to vote them. In the former case new buildings can be erected and improvements made that will comfortably take care of the school children of the city at the present time and provide room for a growth in the attendance which we may reasonably expect in the next few years. In the latter case it will be necessary for the school board to raise the school tax to $1.50 in order to provide funds with which to buy other buildings which will not be suitable for school work in order to take care of the children who will be in school here next year. Under the former plan Hickman will have school buildings and a school system which will compare favorably with those of neighboring towns, and of which she may well be proud. Under the other plan we will have school buildings for which it will be necessary continually to apologize, mere makeshift affairs which will typify a woeful lack of interest in the school affairs of our town. Under the second plan our system of instruction is certain to suffer, for good work cannot be expected either from teacher or pupil when both are forced to work in cramped and unsuitable quarters.

A mass meeting will be held at the courthouse Friday night at which the arguments for the school bonds will be presented, and it is hoped that all the voters will be present—those who favor the bond issue, those who oppose it, and those who have not yet made up their minds on the subject.

GAITHER JONES TO MANAGE LIVE STORE

Has Already Assumed Charge of Popular Men's Furnishing Store.

F. Dobson has bought out the interest of Harry Lynch in The Live Store, and has secured the efficient services of Gaither B. Jones, of Union City, as manager of this well established and popular headquarters for men's furnishings.

Mr. Jones is well known to the people of Hickman and this section. Until the first of the year he was connected with Mr. Dobson's dry goods and variety store, and made friends both for himself and for the store. He is an experienced salesman, prompt and courteous, and is well acquainted with the men's furnishing business.

He assumed the management of The Live Store yesterday morning, and he extends an invitation to all his friends to come in to see him.

Mrs. Jones, his estimable wife, will return to Hickman in the near future, when they will make their home here. She will probably be connected with Dobson's Popular Price Store, and Mr. Dobson is indeed fortunate to secure the services of both Mr. and Mrs. Jones, as both are not only well known and esteemed, but are most efficient in their line of work.

Assisting Mr. Jones at The Live Store is Harold Rice, who accepted a position there the first of the week.

SIX-O'CLOCK DINNER.

Miss Mary B. Parham entertained several of her friends last Saturday evening with a most enjoyable six o'clock dinner, at her home on Dresden road. Those present were: Misses Elizabeth DePriest and Louise McMullin, and Luby Roper, Neville Roney and Harry Crain, and Mr. and Mrs. Bolin Roney.

Mr. and Mrs. Dock Addikson and children, and Mr. and Mrs. Ed Jonakin of near Union City, and Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Jonakin of Jordan, were here Tuesday the guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. I. Jonakin.

NOTICE:

Mr. Harry Lynch has sold out his interest in The Live Store and is no longer connected with the store.

Mr. Gaither B. Jones of Union City has accepted the position as manager of The Live Store. He is a trained and experienced salesman and can always be depended upon to render prompt and courteous service.

He will be assisted by Mr. Harold Rice.

A cordial invitation is extended to the public to come in and visit the store under the new management, assuring you that you will receive a hearty welcome.

SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER I.—Harriet Field, twenty-eight years old and beautiful in the social sense, of the Wat out Hills, Cincinnati, was the daughter of a well-to-do family. Her father, Richard Carter, was a successful business man and a member of the city council. Her mother, Mrs. Carter, was a woman of refinement and high social position. Harriet was a girl of unusual beauty and intelligence, and was the favorite of all who knew her.

CHAPTER II.—Presiding over the tea-table this afternoon, Harriet was looking at the clock. It was a quarter of eight. The door opened and a young man entered. He was a stranger to Harriet, but she felt an instant attraction for him. He was tall, slender, and well-dressed. He introduced himself as Roy Blount, and said that he had just come from the city.

CHAPTER III.

Roy Blount went straight from the door to the tea-table, which was almost deserted now. Harriet saw him coming and she knew what hour had come. She stood up as he reached her, and they measured each other narrowly, with unsmiling eyes.

There was reason for her pale face today, and for the faint violet shadows about her beautiful eyes. Harriet had been awake deep into the night, tossing and feverish. She had always thought that he must come back; for years the fear had haunted her at every street crossing, at every ring of Linda's doorbell. At first it had been but a sliver of apprehension of his coming, an anticipation of what he might expect or want from her. Then came a sinner's time when she told herself that she was an independent human being as well as he, that she might meet his argument with argument, and his threat with threat.

But for the past year or two her lessening thoughts of him had taken new form. Harriet had hoped that when they met again she might be in a position to punish Roy Blount, to look down at him from heights that even his audacity might not scale.

That time, she told herself in the fever of the night, had not yet come. Her pitiful achievements, her beauty, her French and Spanish, her sober book reading and her little attentions of the then and careful speech, all seemed to crumble to nothing. She seemed again to be the furious, helpless, seventeen-year-old Harriet of the Wat out days, her armor ineffectual against that suave and self-confident presence.

She had forced herself to build the wall, to look at the old wound. She had gone in spirit to that old, staidy parlor to which Linda and Fred had carried Josephine's crib late every night, and where sheet music had cascaded from the upright piano. She saw, with the young husband and wife, a fiery, mumble-head girl of fifteen or sixteen, who helped with her sister's cooking and housework, who adored the baby, who planned a future on the stage, or as a great painter, or as a great writer—the means mattered not so much that the end was fame and wealth and happiness for Harriet.

Fred had brought Roy Blount in to supper one night, and Roy had laughed with the others at the spirited little waitress who delivered herself of tremendous decisions while she came and went with plates, and forgot to take off her checked blue apron when she finally slipped into her place.

The man had been a derelict then, a scoundrel. But so was nine years older than Harriet Field. He had had the same delightful voice, the same penetrating eyes. He had brought poetry, music, art, into the staid little parlor of the Wat out apartment; he had helped Harriet to tame and house these soaring ambitions. She felt again those kisses that had waked the little heart into passionate womanhood; she shut her eyes and pressed her hand tight against them. So young—so happy—so confident!—plunging headlong into that searing blackness.

And now Roy Blount was back again, and she was not ready for him. She could not scare now. But he could hurt her irreparably if he would. Isabelle was an indifferent mother and an incorrigible flirt, but at the first word, at the first hint, there would be no arguing, no weighing of the old blame and responsibility. If there was the faintest clue of doubt, that would be enough!

Harriet had shaken back her hair of hair, had hammered furious fists together up on the dark balcony. It wasn't fair—it wasn't fair—just now, when she was so secure and happy! She had flung her arms across the railing, and buried her hot face on them, and had wept desperate and angry tears into the silken and golden tangle that shone dully in the starlight.

She did not refuse him her hand when he came to the tea table, or her eyes, and there was friendliness, or the semblance of it, in the voice with which she said his name. That he was waiting, perhaps as fearfully as she, for his cue, was evidenced by the quick "yes" with which he bowed the old familiarity.

"Harriet! I find you again. I've been waiting all this time to find you! I'd heard Ward speak of 'Miss Field,' of course! But it never meant you to me. I've been thinking of you all night."

"I've been thinking, too," she said, simply.

"It's after six," Blount said with a glance about. "We can't talk here. Can you get away? Can we go somewhere?"

Without another word she deserted her seat, plucked on her hat, and picked up her gloves.

"There's a very quiet back road straight down to Crownlands," she said, considering. "We might walk."

"Anything?" he assented, briefly.

Guided by Harriet, who was familiar with the place, they slipped through the hillyway, and out a side door. They had no sooner gained silence and solitude than the man began deliberately:

"Harriet, I have not thought of anything else since I came upon you yesterday, after all these years. I want you to tell me that you—you aren't angry with me. You knew—you knew how desperately I tried to find you. Harriet? What a hell I went through!"

If she had steeled herself against the possibility of his shaking her, she failed herself now. It was with an involuntary and bitter little laugh that she said:

"You had no monopoly of that, Roy."

"But you ran away from me!" he accused her. "When I went to find you, they told me the Davenports had moved away. Won't you believe that I felt terrible—that I walked the streets, Harriet, praying—praying—that I might catch a glimpse of you. It was the uppermost thought for years—how many years? Seven?"

"More than eight," she corrected, in a somewhat lifeless voice. "I was eighteen. My one thought, my one hope, when I last saw you, in Linda's house," she went on, with sudden passion, "was that I would never see you again! But I'm glad to hear you say this, Roy," she added, in a gentler tone. "I'm glad you—felt sorry. Our going away was a mere chance. Fred Davenport was offered a position on a Brooklyn paper, and we all moved from Wat out to Brooklyn. I was grateful for it; I only wanted to disappear! Linda stood by me, her children saved my life. I was a nursery-maid for a year or two—I never saw anybody or went anywhere! I look back," Harriet said, talking more to herself than to him, and walking swiftly along in the golden sunset that streamed across the old back road, "and I wonder I didn't go stark, staring mad!"

"Don't think about it," he urged, with concern.

"No; I'll not think about it. Royal, don't think that all my feeling was for myself. I thought of you, too. I missed you. Truly, I missed what you had given my life!"

A dark flush came to the man's face, and when he spoke it was with an honest shame and gratitude in his voice that would have surprised the women who had only known him in his later years.

"You are generous, Harriet," he said. "You were always the most generous girl in the world!"

More stirred than she wished to show herself, Harriet walked on, and there was a silence.

"Linda and Fred made it hard for you?" he asked.

"Oh, no! They were angels. But of course in their eyes, and mine, too—I was marked!"

Silence. Roy Blount gave her a glance full of distress and compunction. But he did not speak, and it was Harriet who ended the pause.

"Well, that's what a little girl of eighteen may do with her life!" she said. "I have been a fool—I have made a wreck of mine!"

"You are the most beautiful woman in the world," Roy Blount said, steadily. "You are established here, they all adore you! Why do you say that your life is a wreck?"

"I am the daughter of Professor Field," said Harriet, "and at twenty-seven I am the paid companion of Mrs. Richard Carter's daughter! Oh, well—I was happy enough to have the opportunity. What of yourself? Where have you been?"

But he was not quite ready to drop the personal note.

"Harriet, now that we have met, we'll be friends? My life now is among these people; you'll not be sorry if we occasionally meet?"

"In this casual way—no, we can stand that!" she agreed. "The fear of the night rose like mist, melted away. It was bad enough, but it was not what her infamous and fantastic apprehension had made it. He was no revengeful villain, after all. He did not mean to harm her."

"I've been everywhere," he said, answering her question. "I made two trips to China from San Francisco. I was interested in Chinese antiquities. Then I went into a Persian rug thing, with a dealer. We handled rugs; I went all over the Union. After that, four years ago, I went to Persia and India, and met some English people, and went with them to London."

Then I came back here, as a sort of press agent to a Swami who wanted to be introduced in America, and after he left I rather took up his work, Yogi and interpretive reading. 'Chitra' and 'Shoja'—you don't know them?"

She shook her head, sufficiently at ease now even to smile in faint derision.

"And what's the future in it, Roy?"

Siamese Love Motion Pictures.

The Siamese love the "movies." They flock to Bangkok's motion picture theaters. In each of these theaters there is a royal dais, with a chair for the king and a table for the royal elbow and a jar for the royal spittle (the king does not chew betel nut, but all of his subjects do; so the jar is de rigueur). The king often comes for the premiere of a new picture. Usually the film is a well-worn French or American product, which has been broken so often and pieced together so quaintly that following the story becomes an acrobatic feat. The Siamese follow it eagerly, unmindful of strange gaps in the plot. But Charlie Chaplin may gambol in vain if the king is in the theater, for the audience turn their backs on the screen to look at royalty.

No Worms in a Healthy Child

All children troubled with Worms have an unhealthy color, which indicates poor blood, and as a rule, there is more or less stomach disturbance. GROVE'S TASTELESS CHILL TONIC given regularly for two or three weeks will enrich the blood, improve the digestion, and act as a general strengthening Tonic to the whole system. Nature will then throw off or dispel the worms, and the Child will be in perfect health. Pleasant to take. 60c per bottle.

BIG SAVINGS FOR THE THRIFTY HOUSEWIFE

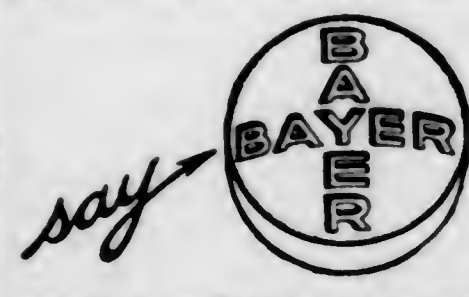

Few homes indeed do not feel the need of economy. The necessity of making every penny count touches the purse of every housewife. It is doubtful if there is a single article employed as a food or in the preparation of food that demands more buying wisdom than baking powder. Upon its quality depends the success and economy of the bakings themselves.

Culmet Baking Powder enables the housewife to make three worth while savings. She saves when she buys it—it is moderate in price. She saves when she uses it—she uses only half as much as is required of most other powders. She saves materials it is used with—it never permits bake day failure. Any woman can use Culmet with absolute certainty of best results—delicious, tasty bakings that are pure and wholesome.

True home economy of time, material and effort is completely handled in its little Recipes, the 76-page Cook Book and Household Hints. A copy is yours FREE—for the asking. Address Home Economics Dept., Culmet Baking Powder Co., 4100 Fillmore St., Chicago, Ill. —[Adv.]

For School Improvement Bonds to be Issued by the Board of Education of Hickman, Kentucky.

To the legal voters of the school district embracing the city of Hickman, Kentucky, and territory annexed thereto for school purposes.

Whereas the Board of Council of the city of Hickman, Kentucky, by its ordinance duly enacted and published of date March 9th, 1922, has called for a registration to be held in said city on March 25th, 1922 and has called for an election to be held in said city on April 1st, 1922, which ordinance is in words and figures as follows:

"An ordinance providing for an election to be held in the City of Hickman, Kentucky, on April 1st, 1922, to take the sense of the qualified voters of the school district embracing the City of Hickman and annexed territory on the proposition of whether the Board of Education of said City of Hickman shall issue and sell school improvement bonds to the amount of $30,000 for the erection and equipment of a new school building or buildings and for the enlargement of school buildings already erected in said district.

Whereas the Board of Education of the City of Hickman has certified to the General Council of the City of Hickman that it is deemed necessary by it for the proper accommodation of the schools of said district to erect and equip a new school building or buildings and for the improvement and enlargement of buildings already erected in the district embracing the City of Hickman, Kentucky; and that the annual funds raised from other sources are not sufficient to accomplish said purpose and the said board has made a careful estimate of the amount of money for such purposes and fixes the same in the sum of $30,000 and that an election for an issue of bonds for school improvement should be held in said district for said purpose to raise said money, the proceeds of which are to be applied as aforesaid, as is required and provided for by Sec. 20 of Chapter 14 of the Acts of the General Assembly of the Commonwealth of Kentucky, approved March 13, 1920, and which section appears on page 48 of said Acts and which title is as follows:

"An Act defining boundaries for school districts embracing cities of the fourth class, and providing systems of schools in such districts, and creating Boards of Education for such districts, providing for election thereof, defining their powers and duties, and repealing all laws in conflict therewith."

Section 1. Be it therefore ordained by the Board of Council of the City of Hickman that the proposition be submitted to the qualified voters of the said city and territory annexed thereto for school purposes on the first day of April, 1922, as to whether bonds shall be issued by the said Board of Education in a sum not exceeding $30,000 for the purpose aforesaid, the said bonds to be designated as "School Improvement Bonds," and said bonds to be serial issue and to run for a period of 15 years, $2,000 of such bonds to mature at the end of each year from date of issue, the rate of interest on said bonds not to exceed 6 per cent, payable semi-annually and that a tax be annually levied as provided for in said law to pay the said interest and to redeem the said bonds as they mature.

Section 2. That a special registration of all qualified voters shall be held in the City of Hickman on March 25th, 1922, and that notice of this registration and of this election be given and published as is required and provided for by law; that this ordinance to become and be in force and effect from and after its passage and publication.

T. T. Swayne, Mayor.

John F. Pyle, Clerk.

I, John F. Pyle, Clerk of the Board of Council of the City of Hickman, do certify that the foregoing is a true and correct copy of the ordinance calling for a registration on March 25th, 1922 and for an election on April 1st, 1922 for School Improvement Bonds, which was adopted March 9th, 1922 and published March 9th, 1922 as appears of record in my office the 15th day of March, 1922.

John F. Pyle, Clerk.

And, whereas, the County Judge of Fulton County as is required and provided for by law has called an election to be held in the annexed territory which has been made a part of the school district embracing the city of Hickman which order is in words and figures as follows:

"It being made to appear to the court that the City of Hickman, through its Board of Council and Mayor, has by ordinance called for a registration and an election to be held on March 25th, 1922 and on April 1st, 1922, respectively to take the sense of the legal voters in the district embracing the city of Hickman as to whether the Board of Education of the City of Hickman shall issue School Improvement Bonds in the sum of $30,000.00 of a serial issue, said bonds to run for 15 years and $2,000.00 of said bonds to be redeemed each year. The said bonds to bear interest from date of issue at a rate not exceeding 6 per cent, payable semi-annually, which call is made in pursuance of Sec. 20 of Chap. 14 of the Acts of the General Assembly of 1920, approved March 13th, 1920.

Now in pursuance of my duties as Judge of the Fulton County Court as is provided for and required by said law, an election is hereby called and ordered to be held in the territory annexed to and a part of the school district embracing said City of Hickman for school purposes. Said territory so annexed and now a part of said district being as follows:

Beginning at the Mississippi River at the mouth of Bayou de Chen thence up said creek to the range line between Township 1 Range 4 West, thence down the range line to Cobble's land, thence east one-half mile to center of Sec. 6, thence south one mile to center of Sec. 7, including Tom Plummer's residence, not farm, south on this line, thence west two miles with the quarter section line to the corner of Sec. 11, thence south with 7th Street and the new Driscoll road to the southeast corner of vicinity lot No. 144 East Hickman, thence west (including the McDemott place but including the Easley place) to the center of Sec. 15, thence south (taking in G. B. Walker's place and M. A. McDaniel's place) thence west one-half mile, thence north to the quarter section line, thence west with the quarter section line 2 1/2 miles to center of Sec. 18, thence north to the Mississippi river thence up the Mississippi river to the place of beginning. The Walker place S.W. 1/4 Sec. 18, has been transferred in this district from District No. 26.

To take the sense of the voters in said territory as to whether the Board of Education of the City of Hickman, Kentucky shall issue the school improvement bonds as provided for in said ordinance to run for 15 years, $2,000.00 of each bonds to mature at the end of each year from the date of issue of said bonds; said bonds to bear interest from date of issue at a rate not exceeding 6 per cent, payable semi-annually, and further, that there shall be levied in each year an annual tax upon the property in said defined and described territory to pay its proportionate part of such bonds and interest as the same accumulates and matures.

It is ordered therefore that notice be given of such registration and the same to be held in the voting precincts of the City of Hickman, Kentucky on March 25th, 1922 and it is further ordered that notice be given of such election and same to be held in the voting precincts of said annexed territory at said time, April 1st, 1922, and in all respects as is provided for and required by said law and the General Election laws of the state of Kentucky.

Chas. D. Nugent, Judge.

State of Kentucky.

I, O. C. Henry, Clerk of the Fulton County Court, do certify that the foregoing is a true and correct copy of the order made in the Fulton County Court on March 9th, 1922.

Given under my hand this the 9th day of March, 1922.

O. C. Henry, Clerk.

Now, this is to notify the legal voters of said city of Hickman, Kentucky, that such registration will be held at the said time, March 25th, 1922 in the various voting places in the City of Hickman and this is to further notify the legal voters of the city of Hickman and those residing in the said annexed territory that such election will be held at the said time, April 1st, 1922 in the various voting places in the City of Hickman and in said annexed territory by the regular election officers thereof for the purpose stated in said ordinance of the City Council and order of the Fulton County Court.

Given under our hands this March 9th, 1922.

T. T. Swayne, Mayor.

THE ORIGIN OF "COCKTAIL"

Many of us use the familiar term cocktail daily, even now, without giving a thought to its origin or actual meaning. We associate it with a cocky feeling. It has a racy sound and seems to fit and that is sufficient. If any one has the curiosity to look it up he will probably be rewarded with the negative information, "origin obscure."

But though the dictionaries dispose of our great national invention in this fashion, its origin is not a complete mystery. Martha McCulloch Williams, writing in the New York Herald gives the problematic origin of a cocktail, both name and drink, in an interesting anecdote. She first explains that a cocktail according to the horse books, is the English country equivalent for the American quarter horse, and that a quarter horse was the particular word used for racing in the old days in the South.

"To run like a quarter horse," says our informant, "was a colloquialism of my upbringin' the synonym of rapid flight. This since the quarter horse knew the business in hand, was going from the word 'go.' Quarter racing was the favorite Saturday afternoon diversion of 'backwoods' sports." Having thus set a civil horse of a quarter horse, we have simply to hear in mind that the cocktail was the English equivalent to appreciate the anecdote which Miss Williams gives as follows:

"As to how the name came to fit also as a drink here is a theory, not so far fetched as some with a few facts behind it. When Washington fought the Redcoats for possession of New York he and his staff resided at a house of call at what is now the Bronx, and were there waited on by a burly landlady, a widow who had a fine head at mixing things up. One day she tried a new brew, slipped, then swallowed, then passed the potion as a stirrup cup to her guests, already in saddle, saying, 'Drink hearty, gentlemen. It's good! I say so. 'Twill make ye each feel as sassy as a cocktail.' She, no doubt, knew quarter horses under their English name, and could think of nothing sassier than such a creature in a whipping finish."

The story is evidently authentic—the question remaining is whether or not Washington's landlady was the first to use the term. Might it not have been introduced by the army before then? Ernest Weekly in his vivacious dictionary of etymological English states the cocktail was first recorded about 1800 and quotes Washington saying: "Those recalcitrant beverages, cocktail, stone fence and sherry cobbler." We have heard of sherry cobbler, but what has become of the stone fence? The Living Age.

HEALTH NOTES

Since the first of February the children of the high school and both grade schools, the colored school and Sylvan Shade have been examined, numbering 1,234 in all.

Of that number there were 905 defective.

Since this examination was begun there have been forty-seven corrections made, two fitted in glasses, six tonsilectomies, and the remaining thirty-nine either had teeth pulled or extracted as the dentist saw fit.

These defects have been found and should be corrected as they hinder the children in the progress of their studies, also undermining their health.

We have done our part by finding them. Parents, do your part by having them corrected.

Thedford's Black-Draught Highly Recommended by a Tennessee Grocer for Troubles Resulting from Torpid Liver.

East Nashville, Tenn.—The efficacy of Thedford's Black-Draught, the genuine, herb, liver medicine, is vouched for by Mr. W. N. Parsons, a grocer of this city. "It is without doubt the best liver medicine, and I don't believe I could get along without it. I take it for sour stomach, headache, bad liver, indigestion, and all other troubles that are the result of a torpid liver."

"I have known and used it for years, and can and do highly recommend it to every one. I won't go to bed without it in the house. It will do all it claims to do. I can't say enough for it."

Many other men and women throughout the country have found Black-Draught just as Mr. Parsons describes—valuable in regulating the liver to its normal functions, and in cleansing the bowels of impurities.

Thedford's Black-Draught Liver medicine is the original and only genuine. Accept no imitations or substitutes. Always ask for Thedford's. E.S.

To Jas. Townsend, east half of lot No. 42, consideration $25.00.

The following ordinances were passed by the affirmative vote of all the Councilmen present, said ordinances are in words and figures as follows:

"An ordinance providing for an election to be held in the City of Hickman, Kentucky on April 1st, 1922, to take the sense of the qualified voters of the school district embracing the City of Hickman and annexed territory on the proposition of whether the Board of Education of said City of Hickman shall issue and sell school improvement bonds to the amount of $30,000 for the erection and equipment of a new school building or buildings and for the enlargement of school buildings already erected in said district.

Whereas, the Board of Education of the City of Hickman has certified to the General Council of the City of Hickman that it is deemed necessary by it for the proper accommodation of the schools of said district to erect and equip a new school building or buildings and for the improvement and enlargement of buildings already erected in the district embracing the City of Hickman, Kentucky and that the annual funds raised from other sources are not sufficient to accomplish said purpose and the said board has made a careful estimate of the amount of money for such purposes and fixes the same in the sum of $30,000 and that an election for an issue of bonds for school improvement should be held in said district for said purpose to raise said money, the proceeds of which are to be applied as aforesaid, as is required and provided for by Sec. 20 of Chapter 14 of the Acts of the General Assembly of the Commonwealth of Kentucky, approved March 13, 1920, and which section appears on page 48 of said Acts and which title is as follows:

"An Act defining boundaries for school districts embracing cities of the fourth class, and providing systems of schools in such districts, and creating Boards of Education for such districts, providing for election thereof, defining their powers and duties, and repealing all laws in conflict therewith."

Section 1. Be it therefore ordained by the Board of Council of the City of Hickman that the proposition be submitted to the qualified voters of the said city and territory annexed thereto for school purposes on the first day of April, 1922, as to whether bonds shall so issue by the said Board of Education in a sum not exceeding $30,000 for the purpose aforesaid, the said bonds to be designated as "School Improvement Bonds," and said bonds to be serial issue and to run for a period of 15 years, $2,000 of such bonds to mature at the end of each year from date of issue, the rate of interest on said bonds not to exceed 6 per cent, payable semi-annually and that a tax be annually levied as provided for in said law to pay the said interest and to redeem the said bonds as they mature.

Section 2. That a special registration of all qualified voters shall be held in the City of Hickman on March 25th, 1922, and that notice of this registration and of this election be given and published as is required and provided for by law; that this ordinance to become and be in force and effect from and after its passage and publication.

T. T. Swayne, Mayor.

John E. Pyle, Clerk.

The Ayes and Nays having been called for upon the motion to adopt the said ordinance, the votes were as follows:

What to do for Colds and Flu

For colds, grippe, flu and to prevent pneumonia, take Mendenhall's Chill and Fever Tonic, a pleasant substitute for quinine, combined with a laxative cough syrup. Mrs. Lula K. Rouch, Drifton, Fla., writes: "My husband had a severe attack of flu, coughed terribly, was treated by our family physician and tried different cures but got no better. I then tried Mendenhall's Chill Tonic, using two bottles. He completely recovered in about ten days. Our family physician now uses your chill tonic." We authorize druggists to guarantee Mendenhall's Chill and Fever Tonic, better than any other.

SYLVAN SHADE COMMUNITY CLUB MEETING

A splendid and a very interesting program was given at the last regular meeting of the Community Club, March 28th. Each member showed a very thorough preparation and was very much enjoyed by a large crowd. We are proud of the increasing interest that is being shown in our Community Club. A meeting with as much "pop" and enthusiasm as this one had is a great asset to any community.

You are invited to attend the next regular meeting Friday evening, April 7th. The program is to begin promptly at 7:45. The following is the program:

- I. The Entertaining Feature—Ministered by eight colored faces from Mr. Hook's room.
- II. The Value of a Community Club—assigned to a speaker of Hickman.
- IV. Discussion—
1. Home Gardening—Mr. Isaac Shuff.
2. Turkey Raising—Mrs. L. D. Madrox.
3. Good Seed Corn—Mr. Tom McMurry.

Groceries—Bettersworth.

VOTE FOR THE SCHOOL BONDS.

If you would visit our schools and see the crowded conditions there, it would not be necessary to urge you to vote for these bonds. The tax rate will be $1.50 for running the schools and providing rooms for the pupils. If bonds are issued the rate will not be more than $1.50.

Since it will not cost any more to issue bonds I should think that every voter in the Hickman District would be in favor of the bonds.

If we issue the bonds then we can build some new buildings that will be a credit to our town and the 25 cents of the $1.50 will create a sinking fund that will pay for the buildings in 15 years. On the other hand, if we do not issue the bonds then the Board of Education must take 25 cents of the $1.50 and rent or buy some old buildings to house some of the pupils in the coming years.

Looking at this from a business standpoint don't you think that it would be a poor investment to rent or buy old buildings when we can get new ones for the same cost?

Other towns not as large as Hickman are voting bonds and building new school buildings. Nothing will add more to your town than good schools. If a man is thinking of leaving his town and taking one of the first questions he asks is: What kind of schools has the town? No one wants to live in a town where his children will not have good school advantages.

If you will give this question a little thought I am sure that you will favor the school bonds. It means everything to the children of your town and it will not cause you to pay any more tax.

WHY YOU ARE GOING TO VOTE FOR SCHOOL BONDS

(By Frances Johnson, 5th Grade.)
The question arises on the first of April as to whether or not you are going to vote for school bonds. One of the many reasons why you should is the reason of fire. The furnace is under the boys' stairway, and if the stairway break out the stairway would catch and quickly burn. It would not take long to burn the old floors, because they are saturated with oil, which has been put on to clean and disinfect them. The pupils would either have to leap from the windows and run the risk of broken arms, necks and limbs or be burned to death.

Another reason is that in many of the rooms the desks are so situated that the light does not shine on it should on the work of the pupils and causes eye trouble. The building is old, out of repair and is not convenient. The rooms are crowded, poorly lighted, heated and ventilated. With the school bonds the people of Hickman would be able to have up to date modern buildings.

This is the question which you are called to vote upon Saturday, April 1.

WORRIED HUSBANDS—READ THIS

Gude's Pepto-Mangan Is the Best Tonic for Nervous, Tired Out Wives.

If your wife is all "tired out" and cross and irritable most of the time, do the children "border line" to death" every day, and do the ordinary household tasks that she formerly performed with ease now seem to overtax her? In other words, do you often come home to a house of trouble instead of a house of joy and happiness?

If your answer is "yes" to these pointed questions, don't blame your wife until she has taken Gude's Pepto-Mangan with her meals for a few weeks. She is simply run down and nervous and needs the kind of iron that she will get in Gude's Pepto-Mangan to give her more vitality and strength. For thirty years doctors have recommended Gude's Pepto-Mangan as a first class building up tonic. Sold by your druggist in both liquid and tablet form. [Adv.]

SIMILIA SIMILIBUS CURANTUR

"Similia similibus curantur" or like ailments are cured by like remedies or poison counteracts poison. This motto of homoeopathy in medicine, which has proven true in many instances. This is why we make Mendenhall's Chill and Fever Tonic, with and without arsenic. The tonic containing arsenic is designated by a label printed in red giving the quantity to each fluid ounce. Arsenic, is "the most successful agent in the treatment of chronic malaria, intermittent, bilious or malarial fevers, chronic chills, brow ache neuralgia, headache or rheumatism due to malaria or general bad health. Increases the appetite, digestion, weight and strength of the patient and has great power to improve the condition of the blood. It is one of the few substances which deserve the name of a general tonic. Inactive liver and spleen functional nervous disorders with malnutrition and anaemia are benefited by its use." Insist on Mendenhall's Chill Tonic, made by J. C. Mendenhall, druggist since 1873.

A TONIC

Grove's Tasteless chill Tonic restores Energy and Vitality by Purifying and Enriching the Blood. When you feel its strengthening, invigorating effect, see how it brings color to the cheeks and how it improves the appetite, you will then appreciate its true tonic value. Grove's Tasteless chill Tonic is simply Iron and Quinine suspended in syrup. So pleasant even children like it. The blood needs QUININE to Purify it and IRON to Enrich it. Destroys Malarial germs and Grip germs by its Strengthening, Invigorating Effect. 60c.

REMINISCENCES

FIFTY YEARS AGO

There was great excitement in the Northwest on account of marvellous tales of gold discoveries in the Black Hills country of Dakota Territory.

Mr. George Mayes, aged 23, son of Est. J. W. Mayes, died at his home four miles from Hickman.

A woman named Harriet Mills was burned to death in a hotel near town.

"The present continued low stage of the Mississippi at this season of the year was probably never known before."

"Corn throughout Kentucky is estimated to be worth on an average, 50c per bushel, wheat $1.25, and hay $15.58 per ton."

"The Illinois Central, and McCombs have determined to build a road from Humboldt, Tenn., to Cairo, Ill."

"The work of protecting our river front is progressing admirably under the management of Fritz Hehner as engineer."

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO

The Courier jumped on the St. Louis Chronicle for its "outrageous, scandalous and greatly exaggerated reports" of the Mississippi flood at Hickman.

"The El Rio Rey, a small nightclub sent out by the St. Louis Republic in gather flood news, passed down Friday last."

"An excursion party from Martin and Union City came in last Friday to see the big river."

"The fruit trees are all in full bloom and a cold snap right now would play havoc with the fruit."

"The rainfall of this section the past month is said to have been unprecedented. It rained 22 days during March."

"The rain Wednesday night washed away one or two culverts on the N. C. & St. L. between this place and Union City."

It was announced that Rev. Crouch would begin a protracted meeting at the Baptist church Sunday.

It was estimated that 1,000 people from the surrounding country were in town Sunday to view the high water.

M. A. McDaniel announced as a candidate for county clerk.

"S. Vreeland has sold his place in West Hickman to Charles Holcombe, Jr."

SAYS CALOMEL SALIVATES AND LOOSENS TEETH

The Very Next Dose of This Treacherous Drug May Start Trouble.

You know what calomel is. It's mercury; quicksilver. Calomel is dangerous. It crashes into your life like dynamite, cramping and sickening you. Calomel attacks the bones and should never be put into your system.

If you feel bilious, headachy, constipated and all knocked out just go to your druggist and get a bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone for a few cents which is a harmless vegetable substitute for dangerous calomel. Take a spoonful and if it doesn't start your liver and straighten you up better and quicker than nasty calomel and without making you sick, you just go back and get your money.

Don't take calomel! It makes you sick the next day; it loses you a day's work. Dodson's Liver Tone straightens you right up and you feel great. No salts necessary. Give it to the children because it is perfectly harmless and can not salivate.

HARRIET AND THE PIPER

Now that the music ceased was laid, she could almost like him.

"The present is extremely profitable," he said dryly. "and I suppose there might be—well, say a marriage in it, some day."

"A rich widow?" Harriet suggested, simply.

"Or a little girl with a fortune, like this little Carter girl," he added, lightly.

Harriet gave him a swift look.

"Don't talk nonsense! Nina's only a child!"

"She's almost eighteen, isn't she?"

"The girl walked swiftly on for a full minute."

"You weren't quite a child at eighteen," he reminded her.

The color flooded her transparent dusky skin.

"That's exactly what I was!" she said dryly. "But talk to Nina, if you don't believe me! Everything that is school-girl and romantic and undeveloped, is Nina. She is absolutely inexperienced; she's what I called her, a child! It's preposterous!"

"A Rich Widow?" Harriet suggested, simply.

"I suppose," the man drawled, "that that is a question for the young lady, and her parents, and myself to decide."

Harriet bit her lip. This was utterly unexpected. Into her calculations, up to this point, she had taken only Royal Blondin and herself. If his words covered any truth, then the matter did not stop there. Nina was involved, and with Nina, Ward and Nina's father and Isabelle.

The complications were endless; her heart sickened before them. And yet, the conviction that Royal dared not betray her had been flooding Harriet's heart with exquisite reassurance during this past half hour. She was safe; her life at Crownlands took on a new and wonderful beauty with that knowledge. And if she was fit to continue there, Nina's companion, Isabelle's confidante, guide and judge for the whole household, could she with any logic warn them against this man?

He had her trapped, and she saw it. To threaten his standing was to wreck her own.

Her eyes looked beyond him darkly; the girl was young and innocent, greedy for flattery, eager to live. What chance had little Nina Carter against charm like his—experience like his?

"I may never be asked to the house after tomorrow night," said Blondin. "She won't be here tomorrow night. This may be the beginning and end of it. All I ask is that if I am made welcome here, on my own merits, you won't interfere! The mere fact that you're living here doesn't mean that you have the moral responsibility of the family on your shoulders, does it?"

"No-o!" Harriet admitted, in a troubled tone.

"Of course not! You live your life, and I mine. Is there anything wrong about that?"

"You know you would never look at that girl except for her money, Roy!" she burst out.

"Nor would anyone else!" he amended, suavely.

Harriet gave a distressed laugh. "Come! You and I never saw each other until this week," Blondin urged. "That's the whole story."

Before she answered, the girl looked beyond him at the splendid stables and lawns of Crownlands. It never lost its charm for her, her castle of dreams; she had longed to be part of just such a household all her life! Now she actually was part of it, and— if what Mary Putnam had hinted was true, if her own fleeting suspicion only a few evenings ago was true; then she might some day really belong to Crownlands, in good earnest!

Harriet made her choice.

"Very well," she said, briefly. "I understand you. I turn in here. Good-night!"

"Just a second!" he said, detaining her. "You won't hurt me with any of them, Ward or the girl, or the father? The girl's lips curled with distaste."

"No," she said tonelessly.

In another second she was gone. He saw the slender figure, in its green gown, disappear at a turning of the tried wall. She paused for no backward glance of farewell. But Royal Blondin was satisfied.

CHAPTER IV.

Again Harriet fled through the quiet house as if pursued by furies, and again reached her room with white cheeks and a fast-beating heart. Nina was not there. She crossed to the window, and stood there with her hands clasped on her chest, and her breath coming and going stormily.

"Oh, he's clever!" she whispered, half aloud. "He's clever! He never made a threat of any kind! He knew that he had me—he knew that he had me just where he wanted me! And what he does here, in making his way with this family, doesn't concern me! Nina is old enough to decide for herself."

Nina had been experiencing what were among the pleasantest hours of her life. A school friend, Amy Hawkes, who was romance personified, under a plain and demure exterior, had observed Nina's long conversation with Royal Blondin, and had found an arch allusion to it so well received by Nina that she had followed up that line of conversation, ever since.

Any way to sleep with Nina, and Harriet realized, as she superintended their fluttered dressing, that she, Harriet, would be obliged to go to their door five times, between eleven and one o'clock that night, and tell them that they must stop talking.

There was a modest knock at the door, and Rosa came in with a box. She smiled, and put it on Harriet's desk.

"For me?" the girl said, smiling in answer, and with some surprise. Rosa nodded, and went her way, and Harriet went to the box. It was not large, a florist's box of dark green cardboard; Harriet untied the raffia string, and investigated the mass of silky tissue paper. Inside was an orchid. She opened the accompanying envelope, and found Ward's card. On the back he had written, "Just a little worried because he's afraid you're cross at him!"

Harriet stood perfectly still, the orchid in one hand, the card crushed in the other. Ward Carter had sent orchids, no doubt, to other girls. But Harriet Carter had never had an orchid before from a man.

She put the card into her little desk, and the orchid into a slender crystal vase. Then she went back to advise Amy and Nina as to gold bands and the arrangement of hair. But a little later, when she was in the big house-keeper's pantry, where several maids were busy with last-minute manipulations of olives and leeks and grapefruit, Ward came out and found her, solemnly busy to her old checked silk.

"Why didn't you wear it?"

"Wear it?—you had, extravagant child! I'll wear it to town tomorrow."

"No, but—" he sunk his tone to one of enjoyable confidences—"but were you mad at me? You looked so glum at breakfast."

"Well, you had nothing to do with it," she assured him, in her big-sisterly voice. "And it was the first orchid I ever had, and I loved you for it!"

It was with something like pain and impatience in his tone that Ward said gruffly: "Yes, you do! You like me about as much as you like Nina or Granny!"

"I like you—sh! just a little better than I do Granny!" Harriet confided.

"Don't spoil your dinner with olives, Ward! Don't muss that—there's a dear! Dinner's announced, by the way. It's quarter past eight."

"I'm going!" he grumbled, discontentedly.

"At any rate, I love the orchid!" Harriet said, soothingly. He was laughing, too, as he disappeared, but something in his face was vaguely troubling to her none the less, and she remembered it now and then with a little compunction during her quiet evening of reading. Well, she would see Linda on Saturday, and have Sunday with her and the children, and that meant always a complete change and a shifted viewpoint, even when, as frequently happened, Linda took the older-sisterly privilege of scolding.

When Harriet had chaperoned Nina and Amy to the Friday afternoon matinee, and had duly deposited Amy afterward in the Hawkes mansion, and had escorted Nina to her grandmother's apartment, she was free to direct Hansen to drive her to the Jersey tube, and to spend a hot, uncomfortable hour in a stream of homegoing commuters, on the way to Linda's house.

She mounted the three cement steps from the sidewalk level, and the four shabby and peeling wooden ones that rose to the porch. On this hot summer afternoon the front door was open, and Harriet stepped into the odorless gloom of the hall, and let the screen door bang lightly behind her.

Immediately, in the open archway into the parlor, a girl of fifteen appeared, a pretty girl with blue eyes and brown hair, a shabby but fresh little shirtwaist belted by a shabby but clean white skirt, and a napkin dangling from her hand.

"Oh, Mother—it's Aunt Harriet! Oh, you darling!"

Harriet, laughing, went from the child's wild embrace into the arms of Linda herself, a tall, broadly built, pleasant-faced woman with none of Harriet's own unusual beauty, but with a family resemblance to her younger sister nevertheless.

"Well, you sweet good child!" she said warmly. "Fred—here's Harriet! Well, my dear, isn't it fortunate that we were late! We'd hardly commenced!"

The remaining members of the family now streamed forth: Fred Davenport, a thin, rather gray man of fifty, with an intelligent face, a worried forehead, and kindly eyes; Julia, a blonde beauty of twelve; Nanny, a fat, sweet boy of five, with a bit on; and Pip, a serious ten-year-old, with black hair and faded blue overalls.

Fred was a newspaper man, one of the submerged many, underpaid, overworked, unheard, yet vaguely gratified through all the long years by the feeling that his groove was not quite the groove of the office, the teller's desk, or the traveling salesman's "beat." Here in the little suburban town his opinions gained some little weight from the fact that he had been ten years with a New York evening paper. Mrs. Davenport was interested in everything her sister had to say; knew the Carters, and even some of their closest friends, by name, and asked all sorts of questions about them.

Later in the evening Fred was at the piano. It was a poor piano, and he was a poor player who smoked his old pipe while he painstakingly fingered Mendelssohn's "Songs Without Words" or the score of "The Gipsy." But Linda loved him.

"He will putter away there, perfectly content, for an hour," she told Harriet. "And at ten you'll see him starting to get Josephine. They're great chums—he thinks there's no one in the world like Daddy!"

Harriet's thoughts had wandered.

"How's David?"

"Lovely. He always comes to us for Sunday dinner," Linda said. "And he always asks for you!" she added, with some significance. David Davenport, Fred's somewhat heavy and plodding brother, a successful Brooklyn dentist, had never made any secret of his feeling for the beautiful Harriet.

"I like David!" Harriet said, in answer to some faint indication of reproach in her sister's tone. But immediately afterward she added, in a lower voice: "Ward Carter has had Royal Blondin at the house this week!"

Linda's rocker stopped as if by shock. There was an electric silence. When she spoke again it was with awe and incredulity and something like terror in her tone.

"Royal Blondin! He's in England!"

"He was," Harriet said, dryly. "He's been in New York for two years now."

Linda shuddered.

"I know—I remember!" she said in a whisper. And she added fervently, "I hoped he was dead!"

"So did I!" Harriet said, simply.

"Our meeting was entirely accidental. He had no idea of finding me; was as surprised as I was." She stopped abruptly, musing on some ungodly-able thought. "You wouldn't know him, Linda. He is a perfect freak. Now thought, and poetry, and the occult, and Tagore and the Russian novelists, and the Russian music; he lectures about them and he has been extremely successful! He wears pon-zee coats and red ties, and has his hair long, and—well, you never saw women act so about anything or anybody! He's having dinner with the Carters tonight." To this Linda could only ejaculate an amazed:

"Royal Blondin!" And as Harriet merely nodded, in the gloom, she added, vigorously, "Why, he hadn't a penny! He was always an idiot—he didn't have enough to eat ten years ago!"

"Well, he has enough to eat now! Ward told me that he gets three hundred dollars for his drawing-room talks—his 'interpretive musings,' he called them!"

"Well, that—" Mrs. Davenport was still dazed with astonishment and indignation. "That really—" she began, and stopped, shaking her head. "Tell me everything you said!" she commanded.

"I will!" Harriet's voice fell flatly. "I came home to talk it over with you." But it was fully five minutes later that she began the inevitable confidences. "We talked—Roy and I—" she said, briefly. "He doesn't belong in my life, now, any more than I do in his! We simply agreed to a sort of mutual minding of our own business."

"Thank God!" Mrs. Davenport said, fervently. "He—he doesn't want to—he doesn't still feel—he won't worry you, then?" she asked somewhat diffidently. Harriet's laugh had an unpleasant edge. "He is after bigger game than I am, now," she said.

"The brute!" her sister commented in a whisper. "It—it is all right, then?" she asked, a little timidly.

"All right!" Harriet echoed, bitterly. "I haven't drawn a happy breath since I saw him! All that time came up again, as fresh as if it were yesterday—except that I have climbed a little way, Linda; I was happy—I was busy and useful—and I had—I had my self-respect!"

And suddenly the bright head was in Linda's lap, and she was sobbing bitterly. Linda, with a great ache in her heart, circled her arms, mother-fashion, as she had circled them a hundred times, about her little sister.

THE COUNTY AGENT'S COLUMN

Strawberry Association Assured.
More than fifty acres of strawberries are raised up by the farmers in the Hickman vicinity. This is sufficient acreage to land a car of berries per day. By loading a car a day it will greatly increase the profits of the growers. We need however, all the help we can get—the more the better—as this will stimulate more competition among the various commission concerns. You will have from now until next Saturday to make up your minds about planting berries this year. A meeting will be held in the office of the Farm Bureau at 2 p. m. of all the men who expect to plant berries this year. This meeting is for the purpose, first of organization and secondly, to arrange for ordering the slips. It is absolutely necessary for every one to be present as far as possible.

Free Shade Trees.

The Commissioner of Agriculture, C. C. Thomas of Frankfort, informs me that there will be a number of excellent shade trees offered the people of Kentucky just for the cost of shipping and preparation for sale. These trees consist of the following varieties: White Elm, Ash, Sugar Maple, Sycamore and a few others. They are about 6 feet tall and are excellent trees for shade and ornamental purposes. Any school, club or other organization interested in securing these trees should write to the Commissioner of Agriculture at once.

Good Seed Pays.

Last year five variety tests of corn were run in Fulton County to determine what variety or varieties would yield best on our soils. Johnson and Boone White and Big St. Charles gave the highest yields over the five demonstrations. One year's test, however, is not sufficient to arrive at a conclusion as to the best variety. These tests will be run at least two more years before we will have data sufficient to form a conclusion. If you have good strong land you would make no mistake by using one of the above mentioned varieties. If your land is medium to poor, Big St. Charles or Little St. Charles are good varieties. It should be remembered that there is just as much in breeding and selection of corn as there is in breeding livestock and it will pay to get a purebred variety that has been carefully selected for high production. If you want the best quality seed corn, it is necessary to get it on the ear then you can see just what you are getting. Any thing that is not shelled into the half bushel and sold for high grade seed corn.

One farmer in this county, T. H. McMurry, is doing some splendid work in breeding and selection of good seed corn and perhaps there are others but I am not so well acquainted with their work. Mr. McMurry has some especially selected Johnson County White of fine quality.

It will pay any farmer big to test his seed for germination before he plants it. A missing bill is an ear lost. A bad ear planted means from 800 to 1200 ears lost. A germination test is the only way to tell anything about the vitality of corn. Merely looking or feeling of an ear or biting the kernel in two and looking at the germ does not prove anything. The ear test method is the easiest method and takes very little time to test all the seed you plant.

Watch The Baby Chicks.

Some don'ts in handling young chickens.
1. Don't feed them for 48 hours after hatching.
2. Don't let them out while the dew is on.
3. Don't overfeed—they should always clean up thoroughly.
4. Don't keep them in dirty quarters.
Some good little chick feeds: Sour milk is very good and should be kept before them all the time if possible. It should take the place of water. Hard boiled eggs finely crumbled up is good. Rolled oats is also good, cornmeal moistened with sweet milk is very good. Fine grit should be provided as this is the only means the chick has of grinding his food. Charcoal will help digestion. Put one tablespoonful of Sulphur Carbamate of Zinc in each gallon of water.

Thirty-five years ago yesterday, I went into business in this good old town, a mere boy, twenty years of age. All these years you have seen fit to give me a liberal share of your valued patronage, for which I am profoundly grateful. We have had our "ups and downs," high waters, money panics, etc., but we are still here, in business, and expect to remain here until "death do us part." Wishing you one and all, health, happiness and prosperity, I beg to remain,
Yours truly,
